Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Sewer Project Is Holding Up Many Civic Plans

THERE are numerous propositions which are before the public eye in Glendale.

Most of these have been under consideration for some time. With probably the exception of the sewer, very little outside of conversation has been had towards the consumation of any of these important problems.

Of course first in importance comes the sewer. Next of importance from our viewpoint is the Civic center. Then comes the establishment of a Junior high school system in our schools. A bridge over the river in Griffith park is another proposition of the utmost importance.

The community chest also should be given careful study.

* * *

LOCATION of the depot is also a much mooted question and is probably as far from an agreeable solution as any of the other problems.

We presume the hesitation in giving support to all these with exception of the depot, is caused by the delay of the sewer plans.

We do not think it wise to absolutely side track all betterment activities awaiting the establishment of the sewer.

There is no question but that all citizens recognize the need of proper sewer facilities, and if the proposition submitted to the citizens is a fair one it is sure to receive hearty support.

* * *

WE do not think the Los Angeles city council should "Pussy Foot" on our sewer application any longer. If it does not recognize the fairness of our offer it should see the danger from a sanitary viewpoint to its own city. We do not think the saying, "No news is good news" holds good in this case, especially if the delay holds up every other proposition. Let's have some action. Delay won't benefit either Los Angeles or Glendale, but a definite action will permit Glendale to know what can be done.

* * *

IT is to be regretted that there should be any delay in the procuring of the old high school grounds as a Civic Center. The grounds, while not ideally located for school purposes, could not be improved upon for a Civic Center. Glendale, in order to keep her youth home, must provide some play ground facilities. A better opportunity will never be presented.

* * *

THE Junior High school proposition is closely allied with the civic center for by selling the old high school plant funds would be provided for the establishment of Junior High schools in different sections of the district.

* * *

THE bridge over the Los Angeles river is nearer to realization. If a little influence were brought to bear on the proper authorities it might be expedited some.

The bridge to Griffith Park gives us ready access to the largest park in the United States.

* * *

THE Community Chest plan of supporting worth while charities is generally accepted as of great benefit to both the communities and the charitable institutions. Before the full campaign for funds for the different organizations is commenced the chest plan should be inaugurated.

* * *

THE depot location should be settled at once. It has taken years to get them into the idea of building and it is a shame now that they are willing to go ahead there should be any tie up with the blame on us locally.

THIRTY ARE CALLED BY GRAND JURY

Probe on Lake Street District Election Continues

[By Associated Press]

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—More than thirty witnesses were summoned to appear before the Los Angeles grand jury today in connection with an investigation of the recent Glendale-Burbank Lake street district annexation election. According to members of the district attorney's office allegations have been made that more than a score of persons were induced to move into the Burbank district and register as voters shortly before the election.

Considerable interest in the outcome of the county grand jury deliberations upon the alleged fraudulent annexation of the Lake street district by Glendale was felt throughout the city hall here today.

The reconvening of the grand jury in Los Angeles today, after recessing since Friday, when a number of witnesses were heard, it was believed would mark definite action on the charges.

REFUSES TO SIGN SPEED CITATION

R. Parod of 306 Ivy street, Glendale, refused Monday to sign a citation ticket made out by Speed Officer Booth to the effect that he was going 25 miles an hour over a street intersection in Glendale. He was taken to police headquarters by Officer Booth. His hearing was continued by Judge Lowe until 10 o'clock Friday morning. He was released on $20 bail.

CHILD INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Marjorie Ritténhouse, 1245 South Mariposa street, Glendale, was slightly injured when cars driven by Frank H. Rittenhouse of the same address, and Mr. Brookens, 468 Salem street, collided, the accident taking place at the corner of Wilson and Central at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. After first-aid treatment the injured girl was taken to her home.

OELSCHLAGER IS RELEASED ON BAIL

BROADWAY WEST SIDE ORGANIZES

Owners Demand Ornamental Light Posts Throughout

TEN FOOT SET BACK

Petitions Are to Be Circulated by the New Organization

Establishment of a set-back line of 10 feet on each side of West Broadway from Central avenue to San Fernando road, and the installation of an ornamental lighting system were unanimously endorsed at a meeting of property owners of West Broadway held last night at the office of O. M. Newby, 107 South Central avenue, with over sixty present. A permanent organization, known as the West Broadway Improvement association, was perfected and O. M. Newby was chosen as president and Mrs. Stella M. Sherman of 341 West Broadway as secretary.

Those present went on record as favoring the circulating of petitions and securing the signatures of property owners on West Broadway favoring the establishment of the ten-foot set-back line in order that the matter might be presented to the city council. If this suggestion were adopted it would mean that any building of a commercial nature to be erected in the future on Broadway, west of Central avenue, could not be put forward closer than ten feet from the property line. It would eventually mean that the street would be widened to eighty feet.

The association also went on record as favoring the installation of a system of ornamental street lighting on this portion of Broadway. A committee composed of A. H. Lapham, Mattison B. Jones and O. M. Newby, with Mr. Sherman acting in an advisory capacity, was appointed to investigate the various types of ornamental street lighting and report back at a meeting to be held on the call of the president.

UNAUTHORIZED GRASS BURNING COSTS $25 FINE

On Monday, Judge Harry W. Chase of this city, fined William Quehl of Los Angeles $25 for violation of the fire ordinances of the forest reserve. Mr. Quehl owns property on Michigan avenue in the Montrose district. He burned off the grass without a permit from the fire warden and therefore made himself liable to a minimum fine of $25 or a maximum one of $500, because of the danger of mountain fires at this season. No damage was done but Judge Chase had no alternative but to impose the fine.

WEST SIDE FOLKS CALLED TO MEET

This association maintains an open forum always. Subjects of civic importance will be discussed.

The second yearly membership subscription is now due. A good attendance is desirable.

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS TO GIVE WILLARD-FIRPO RINGSIDE WIRE REPORT

Everybody Invited to Hear Report of the Contest, Blow by Blow, Delivered to the Press by Direct Leased Wire of the Associated Press

Direct from the ringside, the Glendale Daily Press will announce the Willard-Firpo bout in New Jersey, Thursday evening, at the Glendale Press building, beginning at 6 o'clock, local time.

The report will be received by the directly connected Associated Press wire. Although the service is extra, the Glendale Daily Press has been able to secure it for the fight fans of Glendale.

The bout will be second only in importance to the next clash with Dempsey, for the winner of the Willard-Firpo contest will be the next challenger for the title of world champion heavyweight unless Dempsey can sidestep and arrange for the bout with Wills, the negro.

The returns will be served to the public by means of the loud speaker magnovox, with "Mac" McCoubrey as announcer.

All those who attend the meeting of fans on the sidewalk in front of the Glendale Daily Press, Thursday night, will be assured of as complete a report of the events as they transpire as can be had at any newspaper office in the United States.

DOG PROTECTIVE CONFERENCE IS ONE-SIDED

Councilman Kimlin Only Member of the Body at Meeting

The conference between the Glendale city council and the committee from the Dog Protective association proved almost to be a councilmanless council yesterday. Councilman Kimlin was the only member of the council to appear on the scene. The meeting was scheduled for the city hall at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

When the time for the session arrived, Edwin E. Kulp, Alex. Mitchell and William Rogar Lorraine, constituting a committee of the Dog Protective association, were present. City Manager Reeves and Chief of Police Fraser were also on hand.

But Councilmen Hall, Horn, Davis and Robinson constituted the minus quantity. The conference was cancelled.

It is believed that the proposed meeting of yesterday will be held some time during the regular council meeting Thursday night.

He was 73 years of age, was a native of Ohio, and came to California twenty years ago. For 12 years he had been a resident of Glendale, and in active practice up to the day of his death. By his professional friends he has been characterized as a good man and a good physician, who kept in touch with the latest discoveries in pathology and medicine.

He is survived by three daughters, Miss Carol Duncan, teacher in the Wilson avenue intermediate; Mrs. J. S. Cate of this city, and Mrs. W. H. Hillman of Tulare, Calif; also two nieces who have been like daughters, Misses Ida and Hattie Myers.

Funeral arrangements will be in charge of the Scovern Undertaking company and will await the return of Miss Duncan and Mrs. Cate, who went north to attend the N. E. A.

GAS, OIL ROCKS ALL LONG BEACH

Refinery Plant Explodes and Big Oil Well Roars in

BIG MIDNIGHT FIRE

New Well Belches Rock and Sand; Lifts Derrick

[By Associated Press]

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 10.—With a roar that shook surrounding buildings for blocks and literally awoke the whole city to a realization of impending danger, a terrific explosion at the Long Beach gas refining company plant shortly after midnight, shattered glass windows within an extensive territory, and was followed by flames which totally destroyed a large portion of the company's property and seriously damaged the office and equipment of the Rogers & Edwards Drilling company adjoining.

The loss is estimated at $55,000, most of which was covered by insurance.

The cause of the explosion remained a mystery for many hours, but it was announced by the consulting engineer of the refinery this morning that it seems probable that it was the result of a charge of static electricity igniting one of the huge gas tanks.

Belching rock and sand hundreds of feet in the air and with a deafening roar, well No. 11 of the L. B. C. group, under lease to the Union Oil company, broke away from the drillers shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, creating a sensation in the Signal Hill field and attracting, in a few minutes, thousands of people to the scene.

The bit was down 2306 feet when the well broke away. The gas pressure was tremendous, and the great steel derrick fairly trembled under the force of the explosion.

FIRE SWEEPING GRIFFITH PARK NEAR HOLLYWOOD

The brush and hillside fire, which started at about 11:30 o'clock this morning on the Los Feliz grade just south of Griffith Park and west of Los Angeles river, was declared under control at 2 o'clock this afternoon by firefighters coming direct from the scene of the flames.

More than one thousand acres were burned over, half of this land being within Griffith Park. The fire, which was started by sparks from a traction engine igniting the dry grass at the roadside as the machine was climbing Los Feliz hill, went racing over the comparatively level stretch at the north of the road. Into the hills it went, burning over the entire canyon lying just west of the road constituting the main southern entrance into the park.

The work of fighting the flames is under the direction of Battalion Chief of Division No. 5, George C. Walker, who has a force of possibly two hundred men assisting him. Engine Company No. 35, Hose company No. 2, and two emergency crews picked up from the various engine companies of the Los Angeles departments, are on the job, assisted by dozens of independent fight fighters.

M'FARLAND HEADS ELKS OF GRAND LODGE

[By Associated Press]

ATLANTA, Ga., July 10.—James G. McFarland of Watertown, S. D., was elected grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks at the first session of the grand lodge in its convention. His name was presented by Governor H. W. McMasters of South Dakota.

In his speech of acceptance, Mr. McFarland denounced Bolshevism, I. W. Wism and other ill-grounded "isms" of the present day, declaring the Elks order was a law-abiding, law-supporting, law-enforcing fraternity.

Boston was chosen as the 1924 convention city, following the election of officers. Portland, Oregon and Milwaukee, Wis., had been discussed as bidders for the honor but the eastern city was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Other officers elected were:

Grand Esteemed Leading Knight: Harry M. Tickner, Pasadena, Calif.; Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight, George Winslow, Utica, N. Y.; Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Clement Scott, Vancouver, Wash.; Grand Secretary, Fred C. Robinson, Chicago; and Treasurer, John K. Burch, Grand Rapids; Grand Tiler, Joseph Mayer, Globe, Ariz.

FORMER RESIDENT KILLED IN OREGON IN STAGE TRAGEDY

The tragic death at Eugene, Ore., a few days ago of Mrs. Laura McDonald of Oakland, a former resident of Glendale, has been a great shock to her friends here. She had been visiting friends in the north and was on her way to Oakland when the stage in which she was a passenger was struck by a trolley car at Eugene, killing her and one other passenger, and severely injuring others. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville C. McDonald of this city, have gone to Oakland where funeral services will be held Wednesday.

She was but 50 years of age and a wonderful woman in many ways, who will be greatly missed by others as well as members of her own family. The bus driver is held responsible for the catastrophy as the Oregon law makes it obligatory upon motor bus drivers to bring their vehicles to a stop before every railroad crossing and look to the right and left before proceeding. This he failed to do and he is now lodged in jail awaiting trial.

MEDICAL UNIT OF SANITARIUM STARTED

PACIFIC AVE. BRIDGE WALK WORK STARTS

Concrete Reinforced Span Is Next to Be Considered

TRAFFIC IS NOW OPEN

Construction Is in Response to Appeal for Safety

Work on the construction of the five-foot walk which will be added to the side of the Pacific avenue, Glendale, bridge, will start Thursday morning, according to Manager De Ward of the street department. The bridge will not be closed during this improvement process and the work will be rushed to completion.

This walk is being added in response to an appeal from the residents in the northwest part of the city, who, in presenting the matter to the council recently, stated that the bridge in its present condition is dangerous for school children who are compelled to cross daily to and from school.

The matter of the construction of a re-enforced concrete bridge at Pacific avenue over the wash is being considered by the council. Some of the residents in that section stated before the council a short time ago that the property owners of that northwest locality would be willing to be taxed for the construction of a permanent bridge at that point. This bridge is used almost exclusively by the people of that northwestern section going to and from the business center of Glendale.

BOOSTER FACTS WANTED BY THE C. OF C. FOLKS

Photographs and facts are wanted by the advertising committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

The pictures that are needed are of those of industrial and business property taken during the years 1918, 1919 and 1920, and the facts desired are authentic statements as to the prices paid for such property at that time.

All of these contributions should be addressed to the Publicity Director, Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

MARYLAND AND WILSON CORNER CHANGES HANDS

Reports are circulating on the street to the effect that the property at the northwest corner of Maryland and Wilson has been sold by Mr. DuBois of Long Beach for $43,000. He is said to have purchased it for $10,000 and for a number of years it was occupied by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beamon.

JESSE FORDS LOSE TO NIGHT SCHOOL

Last night's baseball game was between Jesse Smith's Fords and the Night School team, the latter winning with a score of 27 to 20, after an exciting contest in which the interest was suspended from start to finish. The Fords were in the lead for the first four innings. Then Night School men got away with 14 runs. The Fords came back with seven runs but not sufficient to overcome the lead of their adversaries. "Brick" Wilde pitched for the Night School team and Joe Psenner for the Fords. Coach Hayhurst and Mr. Dobbs umpired the game.

SCOUTS MAKE GOOD; FIND LOST HUNTER

Boys Distinguish Themselves at Camp Royl-Kent

WORK IN SQUADS

Return Sportsman to His Wife After All Night Search

With the return of some fifty odd Glendale Boy Scouts and Scout Leaders to the city yesterday afternoon from the Scout camp near Lake Arrowhead comes a thrilling story of a man hunt and rescue of a lost sportsman.

It seems that two men went fishing on Deep Creek Sunday, Mr. B. M. Torrens and Mr. C. C. Bacon of Redondo. Mr. Torrens got tired of fishing and went back to the automobile and waited for Mr. Bacon, who did not show up at the appointed time. Mr. Torrens got worried and went back and looked for Mr. Bacon, but could not find him. At 10:30 p. m., Sunday, Mr. Torrens came to the Scouts' camp and told Mr. Wescott, who was in charge at the time, of the disappearance of his friend and asked if the Scouts would turn out and help search for him at daybreak. Accordingly at 5:30 a. m., Monday the Scouts turned out and were organized into searching parties of five each. They carried sandwiches and took along first aid kits and water. They feared that Mr. Bacon had slipped on the treacherous rocks and had been knocked unconscious. A set of signals were arranged with shrill whistles and in one minute after Mr. Bacon was found all of the search parties knew the good news. The hospitality of Camp Royl-Kent was extended to the men and they stayed for breakfast.

"The boys volunteered their services eagerly and acted like little thoroughbreds," declared Frank C. Ayars, chairman of the camping committee, when relating the experience. "The man was without a coat and had no matches. He had walked all night and was fagged out when found. His wife was frantic during the search and it was all we could do to quiet her." Mr. Ayars said.

According to reports from the Scouts and their leaders, the camp was the best they had ever attended. Everyone, it seems, enjoyed themselves immensely and there was hardly a boy in the crowd that didn't wish he could stay another ten days.

The third ten-day period of Camp Royl-Kent began today when Scouts from the four Burbank troops arrive to take exclusive possession of it. They left Burbank by automobile early this morning and will arrive at camp about noon with a big dinner all in readiness for them. Ovie Ledbetter, J. N. Clark and Scout Executive Harold Benner accompanied them. Scouts in the party were Walter Hutcherson, Troop No. 1; Vincent Weber, Frank Clark and Kermit Ehrman, Troop No. 2; Harold Owen, Russell Reid, Walter Fischer, James Hare, Maurice French, Charles Walker and John Conzoneri of Troop No. 3.

'BRASS' MAKES GOOD AT THE T. D. & L.

Spellbound is the adjective descriptive of the state of mind of the audience that beheld "Brass" at its opening yesterday at the T. D. & L. theater, where it will be shown throughout this week. The ideal combination of a good corking story and all-star cast contributes to this especially the acting of Monte Blue, the leading featured player, a tall, strapping youth of boundless personality and superb powers.

Many came expecting an unusual treat, from the fact that "Brass" is a screen adaptation of the best seller of the same name from the pen of Charles G. Norris. Needless to say, they were not disappointed. Warner Brothers, in producing it, have kept its well-knit story, and the characters live on the silver screen with the intensity of real life. With its fascinating theme, the picture is of interest to young and old alike, to those happily married, and those who find marriage unfortunate, to people about to take the plunge as well as those who have taken it already.

"Brass" deals with marriage and divorce; Philip and Marjorie Baldwin, the principal characters, are married but miserable. A bothersome mother-in-law helps fan the flames of discord, and soon Marjorie tires of hubby, home and babe, finding more pleasures in cafe life with fast friends. The climax, plus a fascinating diversity of love episodes, follows this situation.

Monte Blue as Philip leaves nothing to be desired; the same applies to Marie Provost as Marjorie. Others in the well-chosen cast include Harry Myers, Vera Lewis, Irene Rich, Frank Keenan, Miss Dupont, Margaret Seddon, Helen Ferguson, Edward Jobson, Harvey Clerk, Cyril Chadwick, Pat O'Malley, Gertrude Bennett and Ethel Grey Terry. The fine direction is by Sidney Franklin.

JUSTICE CHASE IS CUPID'S AID TO NEWCOMERS

Monday night Judge Harry W. Chase was called upon to officiate at the wedding of Miss Lo Reane M. Schneider to Alvin William Haslaw. The ceremony was performed at the home of Judge Chase, 1470 East Wilson, the witnesses being the brother of the bride and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Schneider of Verdugo Woodlands, who are newcomers in Glendale. Mr. and Mrs. Haslaw are natives of Utah. They will make their home in this city.

MUSICIANS' CLUB TO BE FORMED HERE

Several weeks ago a recital of great interest to musicians was given at the Howard Cavanah studios by the trio composed of Mrs. Gertrude Champlain Erb, pianist; Julius Kranz, violinist; J. H. Myers, cellis; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cavanah, vocalists, and Miss Gertrude Cleophas, pianist.

Another recital by these and perhaps other artists is promised for the near future in the same place and at that time it is expected that a preliminary organization of the Glendale Musicians' club will be effected and committees will be named to work out details.

The aim of the club will be to stimulate intensive work among professional musicians by providing them at regular intervals with critical audiences who will inspire them to capacity performances, and to do the best of which they are capable.

CAT CLUB DINES ON FINE CHICKEN

About twenty-five were entertained at the chicken dinner which preceded the regular monthly meeting of the Glendale Cat Club, served Monday evening at the home of Miss Claribel Grim, 1650 North Grand View. The tables were wonderfully decorated with flowers from the garden of the hostess, and the dinner was followed by a business session at which the club decided to give a "kitten bazaar" some time in the near future, a feature of the affair to be numbered tickets of admission for which the prize offered will be a pedigreed kitten. The proceeds of the dinner go to the fund to provide new cages for the annual club cat show which will be held the latter part of November or early in December.

'ROBIN HOOD' IS APPRECIATED BY GLENDALE

Glendale showed its appreciation of the enterprise of William Howe in securing "Robin Hood" for this week's program at the Glendale theater by filling the house Monday night. It is a wonderful production, artistic, unusual, and shows Douglas Fairbanks very much in character. It is probable that movie fans will want to go several times for the action is so rapid it is difficult to absorb it all the first time. The beholder is carried into a new world and the picture drama must have severely taxed the art and the pocketbooks of the producers. It will run to and including the 13th. This afternoon Mr. Howe is giving it as a student matinee for but 25 cents.

Military knowledge acquired in the World war, aided materially in handling armies of supernumeraries in the course of the production of "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," a United Artists release at the Glendale theater until Friday, and many achievements heretofore considered impracticable were made possible for the first time in the film industry.

Mr. Fairbanks wanted to get much more than mere "mob atmosphere" into this picture. For the sake of realism and to keep within the bounds of accurate facts gleaned from history by a corps of researchers, it was necessary that each individual player in the whole army should do exactly the right thing at exactly the right moment. Moreover, there was a wide variety of activity required in each big scene, in many of which 1500 players appear at once before the lens. All the usual methods of directing were not sufficient in the circumstances and necessity led to putting into effect real military esablishment on the Pickford-Fairbanks "lot" during the making of this particular picture.

Upon the order of the supreme command, Douglas Fairbanks, the director, Allan Dwan, as field general, assigned his chief assistant, Dick Rosson, to the duty of organizing his eighteen assistants and to serve as brigadier-general over them as if they were so many colonels, each in command of a "regiment" or a unit. A system of mobile telephones such as the United States signal corps uses on battlefields was installed and each assistant was able to keep in direct telephonic communication from changing stations. On days of big scenes these eighteen assistants, each directly answerable to Mr. Rosson, were distributed among the hundreds of players and all these field commanders wore costumes and makeup in keeping with those worn by the players so their presence before the camera could not be detected.

By keeping the various "regimental commanders" in close contact with the various squads, a strict discipline was maintained and the matter of issuing orders was greatly simplified. All confusion was eliminated, because the members of each group of players had but one commander to obey and he was right among them. What other assistants decreed did not have to be heeded. Director Dwan was enabled to issue widely divergent orders to various sections of his army without delay or confusion by direct telephone to each individual assistant director, who, in turn, relayed the orders to the "privates" under his command.

REAL CALIFORNIA PIONEER IS DUE

Glendale is having the pleasure of welcoming as a resident a real California pioneer in the person of Mrs. S. M. Brooks of Ventura, who has just moved into her new home at 343 North Louise street. She and her husband crossed the plains right after the Civil war from Louisiana, entering the state at a point near Bishop and finally locating in Ventura county not far from the present city of Oxnard, where they filed on land. After the death of her husband, who was one of the early physicians of the county, she moved to the city of Ventura. Even then the railroad had not penetrated that far and a journey to Los Angeles had to be made by horse and carriage, two or three days being consumed in the trip.

Mrs. Brooks, who is 82 years young, is just as alert and interested in California and its development, as she ever was. She is the mother of Mrs. Louisa G. Wood of 1470 East Wilson and her coming has united in Glendale four generations of the family, viz: herself, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Harry W. Chase, and daughters Louellen and Margaret Chase.

Truths in Epigram

Time will run back and fetch the age of gold. —John Milton.

Aristotle said melancholy men of all others are most witty.—Robert Burton.

Just as the sand dunes, heaped one upon another, hide each the first, so in life the former deeds are quickly hidden by those that follow after.—Aurelius.

AIR FLEETS

Now it is the matter of air fleets that is causing debate, discussion and concern among some of the European nations, France and England notably. France has an air fleet of size and destructive capacity, capable, it is said, of destroying almost any city in a brief time, if its full fleet were concentrated on attack.

Under the agreement of nations and the laws governing war, if there may be said to be any law governing war, air attack would not be permissible upon communities not concerned directly with warfare. But the labor of all communities is mobilized in the wars of these later days, and doubtless a point might be stretched that would make the attack from the air on any community justifiable in the eyes of the attackers.

The agreement as to the size of water fleets may be said to have settled one question regarding the armament of nations, but the question of air fleets brings up another serious matter. A nation with a very superior air fleet might attack and destroy the principal cities and centers of another nation, and win a war without putting an army into the field at all.

It is not to be wondered at, considering the state of international feeling in Europe, that there is apprehension regarding a superior air force. We over here are a considerable distance from any possible source of attack. But if we were distant only an hour's or half an hour's trip from a destructive air fleet, we might look at the matter with a point of view different from the one we hold now.

In the event of another war, the air fleet will have a place much more important even than in the last one. A fleet of air ships does not cost as much as a fleet of battleships. It has the whole air to fly about in, where a water fleet is limited to bombardments of cities near the sea. A hundred airships with their present carrying capacity could make havoc of cities in a short time.

It seems that the settlement of the question of water fleets has not ended the difficulties of armament. The air fleet comes as another spectre to haunt nations fearful of offense.

HEALTH AND EDUCATION

Out here on the Pacific coast we have had, recently, two great meetings of those who have most to do with the two greatest subjects in the world—health and education. For without health and education civilization would soon slip back into savagery and darkness.

As is often declared, and with truth, health is of the first importance. For a healthy public can be educated more easily than a diseased public can be made healthy, even if it has education. Health with education can be made the most powerful instrument for happiness. Disease cannot progress far, even with education, until it has become well.

So there should be a great national interest in these conferences. One was that of the American Medical association and the other that of the National Educational association. In both bodies there are distinguished men who have given the best years of their lives to the subjects they and the public are vitally interested in.

Notwithstanding the progress of the science of medicine, or the practice of medicine if you will, many persons are ill. That is not at all a reflection upon medicine, either as a science or a practice. We need to remember that many children are born of parents unfit to procreate children. We need to remember that many children are reared in unfit environment. We need to remember that there are many undernourished. And all of these things make for fertile fields of sickness and disease. For Nature has a way of battling with the unfit, either to make them fit or to exterminate them. We should probably have a better state of general health if we could remove causes of disease. As it is, while much has been done to relieve evil conditions, much, if not most of the work of physicians, is the treatment of disease after it has established itself.

And in the matter of education, we find difficulties much the same. The material educators have to work with is not always such material as will produce the best results. It is only fair to say, however, that our public health is improving and that our educational system is improving. But, with health as with education, the problem often goes back of the child to the parents, and all advances are slow in the progress of the human race.

THE MARCH OF EVENTS

Europe seems to be on the verge of another situation that might easily lead to war.

The French proposal to seize Berlin, as a means of forcing the payment of German reparations, is something that will not be looked upon with equanimity by those who have the peace of Europe at heart. And yet the French progress into Germany is by altogether natural steps, for the seizure of the Ruhr held within it all the possibilities if not probabilities of a seizure practically of the German governmental agencies.

Where the end will be no diplomat can say, skilled as he may be in the translation of events into probabilities. No diplomat was skilled enough to say that the killing of an Austrian prince in the Balkans would lead to a world war with a loss of millions of lives and billions of treasure.

The attitude of Germany without question has been provocative. France seems still to be inspired by the spirit of revanche. England cannot sit with calmness and see France holding Germany in military subjection.

It is not improbable that dreams of the pacifists may be again shattered rudely with the noise of artillery and the bursting of bombs. Fervently we may hope and earnestly we may pray that war may not come again. But events are crowding rapidly toward a crisis, and it will take strong hands and earnest minds to avert disaster.

Truth and honesty have but little in common with diplomacy.

Poetry may bring returns—if a stamp is inclosed with it.

It is an easy matter to get into the habit of meeting trouble half way.

We feel sorry for the man who thinks that everybody else is dishonest.

And Now It's A Truth Serum

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Strictly speaking the "truth serum" is not a serum. It's a drug called scopolamin, which is identical chemically with heroin, which is used in twilight sleep.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

Nobody suspected the truth compelling qualities of the drug until Dr. R. E. House of Ferris arose at San Francisco during the recent meeting of the American Medical association and gave the results of his experiments with the drug, and later proved his claims.

According to Dr. House scopolamin will produce weird results when administered to a follower of Ananias. You give him one shot and forthwith his defenses fall and he spills his family secrets, his intimate moral history and all of the things he has walled up in his secret soul. Nothing can be held back, nolens volens, the victim tells the truth and has it over.

Naturally this gave the medicos a turn. They gasped and sat up wide eyed, but Dr. House was in earnest and deeply so. He claims to have submitted his methods to the Medical society of Texas, which endorsed them—virtually. He borrowed a few criminals from the Burns Detective Agency in Dallas and proceeded to prove his theories through a series of experiments on them. This was in 1922. Within the next 30 days Dr. House will demonstrate the truth compelling powers of scopolamin before the state convention of Texas sheriffs at Galveston.

Following this demonstration, if the sheriffs are convinced, Dr. House declares that they will work to have his method legalized by the Texas legislature.

Well, we have been for a long time looking for some method of detecting perjury. If Dr. House has discovered it he is a racial benefactor. The criminal lawyers will either starve or take to selling oil stocks, for there will be no use to employ high priced lawyers to defend a man who has to tell the truth regardless of the consequences.

For the same reason the professional expert witnesses will lose the high priced jobs and ordinary folks who have been unfortunate enough to witness a crime will be delivered from the ordeal of going to court to tell about it, meanwhile being bullied by "counsel for the defense."

Automatically perjury will become an extinct crime, perhaps the first in history. Detectives will have nothing to detect, the innocent can enjoy the rewards of virtue and the third degree will pass into the limbo of forgotten horrors.

However, before the world can enjoy the benefits of Dr. House's discoveries, it will be needful for the public at large to accept his conclusions and consent to the truth becoming common currency in courts.

There are many people who will find no joy in such a revolution. An absolutely scientific method of determining the truth will mean that many people who now lie easily and profitably will perforce have to embrace the straight, hard and narrow way of honesty. They will not wish to do it, and because they do not so desire they will seek to discredit Dr. House and abolish the use of scopolamin as a truth test.

I see a rocky road ahead of the progressive doctor.

Incidentally, what will scopolamin do to the medical profession?

Suppose a patient wants to know what his family physician cut out of him at his last operation, suppose he desires to find out what actually ails him, suppose—oh, well suppose any of the many things which under the circumstances are supposable. You can see the likely panic in medical ranks.

It's great to know that for the world truth has come knocking undisguised, but lying will retain its place in the effections of humanity so long as it's valuable.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

The breaking point.

There is a point at which every material will snap.

In the straw it is low.

In the great steel beam it is high.

Sand falls to pieces at a touch.

Granite must be bursted with dynamite.

But the breaking point exists nevertheless in the steel and in the granite.

* * *

You would not put material of low breaking point to sustain a bridge structure.

Neither would you put sand to hold up the walls of a ten-story building.

But you can bale straw into a good sized bundle and the baled straw will sustain a weight thousands of times greater than the single straw.

* *

And you can take the powdery cement and lay it mixed with water and it will sustain its hundred or thousand ton load.

So it is not altogether the material itself.

It is the manner of its preparation.

* * *

A sound oak beam will hold up its great weight.

A rotten log will snap at a touch.

Both are of the same material.

But the fibre of one is sound and wholesome.

The fibre of the other is rotten.

* * *

Men are fibred much like wood.

They are of sand sometimes, breaking at a low point.

Succumbing to temptation or the lure of vice.

Unable to resist.

Straws in the world of business and social life.

* * *

And then there are men like steel beams.

Breaking only at the highest point of strain.

But likely to break at that time, even as the straw breaks.

For there is a human limit to weight and responsibility and temptation.

* * *

The sand man will crumble at a touch.

The granite man will withstand enormous strain.

But dynamite will rive and break him.

So humanity is fallible.

Some in little stress.

Some in great.

* * *

If we find material that will not withstand strain, we do not put too much strain on it.

As we would not put a hungry boy in charge of a bushel of gum drops and not expect him to eat the gum drops.

To the extent of his capacity.

* * *

Nor should we judge all persons alike.

Heredity, environment, education, training, have much to do with individuals.

And all of it has to be taken into consideration in forming judgments.

Idiots are not responsible before the law.

* * *

Songs of the Poets

The Reconciliation—Alfred Tennyson

As through the land at eve we went,
And plucked the ripened ears,
We fell out, my wife and I,
O, we fell out, I know not why,
And kissed again with tears.

And blessings on the falling out
That all the more endears,
When we fall out with those we love
And kiss again with tears!

For when we came where lies the child
We lost in other years,
There above the little grave,
O, there above the little grave,
We kissed again with tears.

POSITIVE DOCTRINE AND UNREST

By DR. FRANK CRANE

HILLAIRE BELLOC, the historian, in a recent lecture on what ails the modern world expressed his opinion that our great trouble is uncertainty in belief. He declared that where there is unrest it is caused by "absence of positive doctrine."

This statement coming from an intellectual man is so near piffle that all that prevents it from being alarming is that it is amusing.

We had thought that the idea that the ills of the world could be cured by reaction and by giving up the business of thinking was confined to pensioners of moss-grown institutions, to timid old ladies, and to gentlemen whose ideal of security was the graveyard.

The fact is that nothing in the world would be so dangerous as a general acceptance unquestionably of positive doctrine.

It is positive doctrine that has been the first cause of the downfall of states and the decay of institutions.

It is well enough to be positive if one is positive about the truth, but the security of living in what Zangwill called "a cosmos without facts" is entirely fictitious.

The fallacy that underlies Mr. Belloc's position is that truth is something fixed, something that someone can discover and will remain the same for all time.

In John Dewey's "Reconstruction in Philosophy," the error in this idea is admirably exposed.

Truth is something which is alive. It is a matter of adjustment. It is the compass of the free spirit. It is not a rock that never changes.

The world never breathed the spirit of progress and human welfare and democracy until the age of science had led men's minds to the value of truth rather than to the importance of authority.

Authority is as fatal to minds as an ultimate ruler, as it is fatal to nations as absolute monarchy.

The only safety lies in progress, in thought, in investigation and free experiment, just as the safety and health of a human life depends upon its exercise and liberty and cannot be secured by locking a human being up in a cell.

Faith is good. But it is only good when it is faith in something that is true. Faith in something that is poppycock is not good.

Faith in the medicine the doctor gives you has great medicinal value, but you might have all the faith in the world and if you swallowed a drink of carbolic acid you'd be killed just the same.

The first duty of man is not to have faith but to find out what is true.

The faith that cannibals had in their totems and headhunters, had in their tribal gods and the officers in the torture chambers had in their creeds and that the Chinese have in their paper screens to keep off witches, is far less valuable than a sound and healthy disbelief in these things.

Faith can move mountains but only when it is the kind of faith that uses dynamite. Faith can heal disease but only when it is the kind of faith that isolates the germ, studies the laws of health and kills off the mosquitoes with kerosene.

Positive doctrine is good but only in so far as one knows that his doctrine conforms to the actual truth.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE VOICE OF McKINLEY

[Chicago Journal of Commerce]

In the yard which surrounds the state house at Columbus, Ohio, is an imposing bronze statue of William McKinley, the twenty-fifth President of the United States. On either side of the pedestal are two quotations, selected from his speech as representative of his thought as a patriot and statesman. Both have a bearing on the present. One reads:

"Let us remember that our interest is in concord, not conflict; and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war."

McKinley was a soldier in one war, and the commander-in-chief of the armies of the nation in another. He was also a public man for many years in peace times, and played a conspicuous part in the development of the government's economic policies between the two wars in which he participated, and after the war with Spain. He was, therefore, well qualified by intimate knowledge of both to make a true comparison between the victories of both peace and war.

When the war with Spain was over, and we annexed the Philippines, the cry of imperialism was raised against McKinley. The second quotation on the Ohio monument expresses the attitude of Americans generally toward other governments and peoples. It is as follows:

"Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness, and peace to all our neighbors; and like blessings to all the peoples and the powers of earth."

That was the length and breadth of American purpose toward the rest of the world after the war with Spain. We have gone far since then. In McKinley's time, only 25 years ago, the United States had no thought of such an organization as the League of Nations. It requires the greatest and most destructive of wars to create even a minority sentiment in that direction.

CHATS ON SCIENCE

HOW MAN GOT HIS SHOE

DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

According to the Oriental tale, all men went barefoot in the old days for they knew nothing of shoes. The soles of the people were hardened to walk upon the ground, but the king's feet were tender, for wherever he walked carpets were spread for him. This arrangement was considered mutually satisfactory, or rather was not considered at all, being regarded as natural and therefore inevitable. But one day a new bride was brought to the king, the loveliest lady in all the land, and a long strip of carpet was laid from the palace steps to the highway so that the king could go forth to greet her. As evidence of the truth of the tale you may still see such a carpet laid in front of a building where there is a wedding.

As the bridal cortege approached, the king marched majestically down the carpet pathway to the end where he was to await his prospective bride. But when he caught sight of her riding on her palfrey he found her more beautiful than his courtiers had said she was (this is the only incredible thing in the story) and carried away by passion, rushed to greet her.

But just as soon as the tenderfoot king stepped on the ground his soft sole was cut by a sharp-edged flint so when the princess first saw her royal bridegroom he was holding one foot in his hand and howling.

The king, feeling doubly sore from the wound and the humiliation, at once called together the wise men and the soothsayers and astrologers and ordered them under pain of beheading to devise means of carpeting the whole earth so that wherever he trod no such accident should ever happen again. The official board of experts flunked this intelligence test as usual. I mean, as usual in oriental tales. They first scratched their heads and then shook them and were likely in the end to lose them. They figured out that there was not enough material of any sort to cover the whole earth and reported to the king that his demand was mathematically impossible.

But the king was inexorable and gave them twenty-four hours to solve the problem. At the twenty-third hour the situation was saved by a poor maker of leather aprons who appeared before the king and kneeling at his feet put on them two queer looking contraptions. Then he asked the king to walk out upon the highway and the fields and see if the earth was not carpeted wherever he walked.

The king tried it and found that it was as he had been told. Overjoyed at this happy solution of the difficulty, he offered the poor leather-worker half of his kingdom and his daughter in marriage. But the leather-worker declined both with thanks and asked instead that he be allowed to extend the benefits of his new invention to all the people. The king generously granted his request and issued an edict that everybody should be shod with the new pedal protectors.

I understand that the inventor made a fortune out of it since he had a monopoly of the business. But that does not matter now for he died some years later, leaving all his money behind him, and the people got their shoes and have been wearing them ever since.

The alteration of night and day are unalterable, yet man has arranged the periods of light and dark to suit his duties or accommodate his pleasures. From the beginning man had the power to make it night whenever he wished by simply shutting his eyes, but he has only recently acquired the art of making it day when he wants to by simply pressing a white button.

He can outsoar the eagle on his self-made wings. He can outrun the deer in his automobile. He can dive longer than the whale in his submarine. He can lift an elephant in air with his engines.

But man is only beginning to make himself at home on this planet. He is not yet awake to his power and possibilities. He is lacking in a thousand things as necessary to his comfort as shoes and does not yet know that he lacks them. We are still living in the barefoot age for the most part, hardening our soles by bruises and cuts, which we might avoid if we knew a little more and used what little we do know.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

POISON IVY

Every summer someone's vacation is spoiled because he made the mistake and said "how do," to poison ivy.

It is a climber that trails itself over the stone walls and its bronze green leaves are very attractive to those who are making wild flower bouquets.

It sometimes makes mats on the ground under trees and unthinking or unseeing people lie down on it and roll over it. Next day they have a case of poisoning and are very uncomfortable or worse for days to come.

The skin glows with a rosy red rash. It burns and itches and the victim begins scratching it. That's the worst thing to do. If the skin is broken the infection spreads deeper and further and the patient generally takes to his bed and sends for the doctor.

Some folk are so susceptible to the poison of this vine that if they pass close to it when it is wet they will suffer its vengeance. Children sometimes rub it on their hands just to see if they will "get it." They generally do.

While not dangerous this poisoning is very uncomfortable and with a little care and caution all the trouble can be avoided.

First, learn to recognize it. It has a woody, twisting stem that clings to old walls and fences. Its leaves grow in a group of three. One leaf for each letter in i-v-y. Woodbine is sometimes mistaken for it, but as it has five leaves and the ivy three the mistake need not occur.

See that none of it is left on your premises. In the winter when the sap is low and the leaves are gone, chop it out and pour salt water in the place where it grew. If you need a vine in its place the woodbine will grow readily, is far prettier and not harmful.

Should one of the children be so unfortunate as to break out with the ivy rash, attend to him. The remedies are simple and cheap and the treatment is easily administered.

Before starting to the country, when you have the family doctor go over the children, ask him for the best treatment for poison ivy and provide for it in your first aid kit.

We have had children come home from the country with skin blotched and scratched and scarred because the simple though annoying condition was not cared for when it should have been.

There is a possibility of the thing becoming grave when the doctor will say, "Too bad. Looks like blood poisoning now. Why didn't you attend to it in the beginning?"

Look out for the dainty ivy then, as it creeps over the old stone wall. It holds great promise of discomfort for the unwary.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

When my old man used to take me out to weed the onion bed, which he did, being an incredibly hard-hearted old monster, who was not en rapport with the modern theory that the child should do no work, I used to try to curl as close to the onion roots as possible. I tried to make it easy.

"Stand up," my old man would roar. "Keep your knees stiff. Bend from the waist."

"But that's so hard," I'd whine.

"There is no easy way of doing work," my old man always said.

He was wrong, of course. I haven't a bit of doubt that the modern farmer puts a weedy onion bed in one end of a machine and takes out a check, minus broker's commission, if any, at the other. There are plenty of easy ways of doing work. However, as I grow older I begin to get an idea of what my old man was driving at. He always held that the first thing to consider was getting the work done. The man or boy who thinks first of comfort when on a job is not apt to win any medals for the way he does it.

There is a psychological fact to be considered in this matter of being over-easy with one's self. If you plunge at your work with the one idea of getting it done, it melts away somehow. It doesn't bother a bit. Before you know it you are out in the sun. You have even enjoyed getting that savage job by the back of the neck and shaking its back teeth like castanets. The work has been done better, too. The nails have been driven deeper, the customer has been made certain, the patient has been made to feel your own current of vital energy.

But if you try to weed an onion bed sitting down, heaven help the onions!

PUT YOUR MONEY IN A HOME

Let Your Dollars Work For You. Give them a chance to show their real earning power when invested in real estate and homes. In no other way can you make money faster, surer, and with greater safety. Real estate and improvements are the basis of all wealth. Every successful man will advise you to put your savings into real estate and homes. Ninety-five per cent of the men who acquire enough of the world's riches to retire on, will tell you that real estate was responsible for their success.

The ownership of a modern home stamps you and your family as desirable citizens. Homes reflect thrift, character, determination, perseverance; are real protection against adversity, and give to their owners a satisfaction of worth-while accomplishment that can not be equalled in any other form of investment.

Those who own their own homes know of the contentment, happiness and ideal environment that homes can make and give, and the satisfaction that is reflected from home life is your greatest recommendation to build one of your own.

HOME OWNERSHIP is a privilege and should be the one accomplishment foremost in the minds of all. It represents all that is good, true and beautiful, and gives to its owner that satisfied feeling of contentment that makes and keeps family ties closely united into one everlasting peace, happiness and love.

NO LONGER CAN ANY ONE GIVE A GOOD EXCUSE FOR NOT BUYING A HOME

As the rent money you are paying out for rent will make payments, interest, etc., and soon you will have a substantial interest in a home that some day will be yours, and when that day comes, you will indeed be a proud and happy man, for you have done well. You have acquired and paid for a home.

EDITORIALS BY THE PEOPLE

July 9, 1923.

The Glendale Press,
Glendale, California.
Gentlemen:

The Union Pacific Railroad owns valuable property in the city of Glendale which is probably not taxed. I refer to their right-of-way to occupy our streets. This most valuable property right should not escape taxation especially now that other property is taxed so heavily. This kind of property has been taxed for many years by New York state which distributes about six hundred millions of dollars' worth of this kind of taxable property among the localities according to the location of the property. I quote the following published statement of Mr. Walter H. Knapp, one of the tax commissioners of the state of New York:

"In 1899, when Mr. Roosevelt was governor of New York, there was discovered the fact that the occupancy of public places—streets, highways, the crossing of public waters, and so forth—had some value, that there was some element of franchise not taxed; this was denominated a special franchise. A law was passed and became operative, assessing what are known as the special franchises of all these properties. That was before public service commissions came into existence to control rates, and the idea was that there was a certain value that the public owned in these streets and public places, which the corporations occupying and enjoying them ought to pay for, in the shape of taxes. That assessment, known as the special franchise assessment, amounts in the state of New York, as far as the assessment is concerned, to something like six hundred millions of dollars, and it is distributed among the localities according to the location of the tangible property."

Very truly yours,
S. L. GILLAN.

FOREIGN TRADE BALANCE IS REVERSED

Vice Pres. Herman Nelson of Pacific Southwest Tells Cause

Mr. Herman Nelson, vice-president and manager of the Glendale avenue branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings bank, today gave a very interesting interview relative to our foreign trade. Mr. Nelson said in part:

"A development of significance to the people of the Pacific-Southwest is the reversal during the past two months of the foreign trade balance of the United States. During March imports exceeded exports by $57,000,000 and during April, by $41,000,000. For the first four months of 1923 there has been a net balance of imports over exports of about $89,000,000.

"The significance of this is that foreign countries who are debtors to the United States are beginning to pay in the only possible manner, the money they owe us. They are using every means to sell their goods and are creating keener competition in the world markets than ever before.

"Economists point out that in the United States from 1860 to 1873, there was normally an excess of imports over exports. In 1873, however, this situation was reversed and exports soon exceeded imports—this being caused by the workings of the inevitable law of foreign trade that a country's debts must finally be paid by the debtor country establishing an excess of exports over imports, and so after 1873 the United States began to pay back the foreign capital which had been invested in railroads and development enterprises in this country. In the main this condition has existed up to the present time.

"Prediction is now made that the situation will be reversed; that the foreign countries which owe us approximately $14,000,000,000—the interest on which amounts to $650,000,000 a year—will henceforth sell us a greater volume of their goods to repay this debt. This does not mean, however, that the United States exports will be seriously diminished as it is possible and probable that imports into this country will increase at a more rapid relative rate than exports and that exports may be maintained at approximately the present level or even increase. This situation would once again explode the old fallacy that the American balance of trade must be maintained or prosperity will be destroyed.

"Viewing the situation from the standpoint of the Pacific-Southwest producers, the very likely probability of much keener competition in the foreign markets where Pacific-Southwest products enter, means that local producers must prepare themselves to maintain a supreme position for their products.

"The most important single item in the success of meeting this competition is the maintaining and the improving of the quality of our products. The Pacific-Southwest grower is naturally in a very excellent position to accomplish this through his many co-operative associations. His marketing representatives are men of ability and experience who constantly strive to standardize products of this territory on a supreme quality basis.

"However, these men cannot succeed without the co-operation of the grower, who in turn cannot efficiently co-operate without educating himself in every phase of his work. An instance in point is found in the deciduous fruit industry. The outstanding sin in this industry has been the failure of the growers to prune and thin their trees so as to obtain large and healthy fruit rather than a large tonnage of poor or indifferent fruit. To bring this situation to the attention of the growers, the Southern California Canners' Bureau have issued several pamphlets aimed to co-instruct the grower how to improve the quality of his crop, showing him that one 2½-inch peach obtained by proper pruning and thinning is more valuable in money returns to him than four 2-inch peaches. This information is issued for the ultimate benefit of both the grower and the canner since the resulting pack will be of a quality that can be marketed all over the world in competition with the fruit of any other country.

"Practically all growers' co-operative associations have taken steps to enhance the quality of Pacific-Southwest products. And it is believed that although foreign countries, which have incurred huge debts as a result of the World war, will continue to restrict their purchases in order to pay these debts, that they will nevertheless find that the Pacific-Southwest products have become a necessary ingredient of their standard of living and that producers of this territory will be able to maintain their foreign sales on a satisfactory basis and even to extend them considerably."

DR. ROYAL J. DYE AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

At Central Christian Bible school Sunday morning the Illinoisans had their innings in the contest of states now going on. W. J. Myers, choir director, was in charge and he marshaled the Sucker hosts to the front, 36 strong, and they sang with great fervor the state song "Illinois." Then all-day suckers were distributed to everybody present. Mr. Myers asked each one to take at least one good suck on the candy, then complacently remarked, "I knew I could make suckers of all of you if I tried hard enough."

Dr. Royal J. Dye, a missionary and worker with young people of nation-wide fame, filled the pulpit at the morning worship hour. He told of how 24 years ago, he and his wife started a mission field in the Belgian Congo, far up the mighty river that gives its name to a vast region in the heart of Africa, establishing churches in many villages, after great hardships. Then he told of his journey last year over the same routes that he and his wife traversed in canoes, but this time steamers were used, the Congo being navigable for such boats more than 3000 miles from its mouth.

He found more than 10,000 active Christians in the churches founded less than a quarter of a century ago, one of them having a congregation numbering 5000. The finest of fellowship prevails between the Christian church missionaries and native Christians on one hand and the Roman Catholic rulers of the land, on the other, the latter urging the founding of new stations by the missionaries and assisting them in procuring advantageous sites, declaring that one earnest Christian worker can do more to promote peace with the natives than all the soldiers that can be sent against them. Christian unity is no empty dream, in the face of such facts as these.
